Summary. Anniversary home base for Alex & Kim at Bellagio, Oct 9–12; lakeside views and an easy launch point for our Las Vegas weekend.

Story. Romantic. Night one. Room lights off, bare feet on the cool carpet, fountain spray lit gold outside the glass. A familiar showtune cue drifted up from the Strip just as the jets peaked; soft AC hum under it. We didn't talk much — just watched the water rise and fall with ice melting in the minibar glass. The trip finally felt real. Romantic. Uploaded from thirty thousand feet. Same fountain loop as night one, but now I can hear the plane engines under it. Watching it on a tiny screen made my throat tight — proof we were really there, saved after the fact on purpose.

Bellagio Conservatory — Anniversary Cocktails

Bellagio Conservatory
— Anniversary
Cocktails

Summary. A sparkling first-night stop in the Bellagio Conservatory for Alex & Kim: seasonal flowers, a slow wander, and anniversary cocktails nearby.

Story. Romantic. The air smelled like wet petals and cold gin. Alex kept brushing my hair out of my eyes for the photo and we both cracked up every time — not polished, just us under that ridiculous floral arch, Strip noise muffled for a minute. I want to remember how light we felt before the fancy dinner.

Carbone at Aria

Carbone at Aria

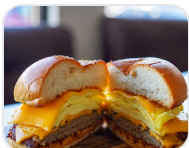

Carbone at Aria

Summary. Mario Carbone's theatrical Italian-American at Aria — spicy rigatoni, tableside Caesar, and a special-night Strip reservation.

Story. Special. Spicy rigatoni split down the middle, candles low, room buzzing. We ordered the wrong wine and toasted our anniversary anyway — Kim's laugh louder than the next table. Empty plates, full stomachs, that warm "we made it" feeling after a delayed landing. Funny. Uploaded the morning after, coffee in hand at home. Our hands on the tablecloth before dessert — rings catching candlelight, both of us looking exhausted and stupidly happy. That's the photo that means we did anniversary right, even with the wrong wine.

Eggslut

Eggslut

Summary. Cosmopolitan breakfast counter known for the Fairfax sandwich; expect a line, a brioche bun, and a runny yolk.

Story. Funny. Not fancy, perfect. Soft bun, runny yolk, standing almost elbow-to-elbow with strangers. We were still talking about Sphere with our mouths full and didn't care who heard. The canceled reservation felt like a win.

Shake Shack near Cosmo/Aria

Shake Shack near
Cosmo/Aria

Summary. Counter-service burgers and crinkle fries by Cosmo/Aria — the easy, air-conditioned lunch stop between Strip walking.

Story. Funny. Not fancy at all — paper boat of fries, grease on our fingers, AC blasting after the heat. We sat on a bench and people-watched tourists in sneakers and sequins. Somehow the best pause of the day; no reservations, no rush, just salt and shade.
